1. Brief overview of grant's purpose and/or impact.

The Innovative Teen Pregnancy Prevention Program (iTP₃) will support the Adolescent Sexual Health Equity Program's (ASHEP) development of innovative strategies to provide sexuality education to youth with intellectual and developmental disabilities, as well as parents/guardians, support service providers, and other caring adults. The iTP₃ project is funded by a 5-year Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Adolescent Health (OAH) cooperative agreement (AH-TP2-15-001), and offers the opportunity for recipients to explore innovative strategies to reach youth currently underserved by traditional teen pregnancy prevention strategies. In July 2015, the Health Department was awarded an OAH teen pregnancy prevention grant from a related funding stream.

Curriculum-based sexuality education programs can play an important role in supporting the healthy sexuality of young people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. However, current sexuality education for youth with intellectual and developmental disabilities tends to 1) focus predominantly on how young people can defend themselves against sexual assault or avoid perpetration (boundary setting); and 2) be geared towards discouraging young people from accepting and exploring their sexuality and building healthy/respectful/mutual romantic/sexual relationships with others. This has hampered young people's access to information, resources and support, as well as their abilities to make informed decisions. ASHEP staff have heard from self-advocates and others in field that there is a lack of information about building and maintaining healthy relationships, including healthy romantic and sexual relationships, tailored to young people with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

This funding opportunity would provide ASHEP the opportunity to work with community partners to:

- Conduct a robust needs assessment that would consider how to integrate healthy sexuality into the lives of youth with intellectual and developmental disabilities using a systems approach;
- Build capacity among key stakeholders such as support providers, teachers, coaches, parents/guardians, caregivers and self-advocates/peer educators who have regular interaction with the young people in their lives and opportunities around how, when, and what to share with clients/residents/students/children/peers with intellectual and developmental disabilities; and

- Develop a sustainable plan to provide ongoing support/consultation services

2. Brief overview of how proposal is aligned with Department's strategic direction.

The proposed project fits squarely within the Health Department's mission to assure, promote, and protect the health of the people of Multnomah County in partnership with the communities we serve. In addition, the proposal supports the Public Health Division's strategic direction of "Relentlessly Pursuing Health Equity" and builds off of current ASHEP work.

3. Describe any community and/or government input considered in planning for this grant.

ASHEP has done some preliminary reaching out to Multnomah County Aging and Disability Services and other agencies to gauge interest in this effort; however, this is primarily a planning grant and as such, community input/planning is the major scope of work during the grant period.

4. What partners may be included in program activities?

Potential partners include:

- Portland Public Schools' Community Transition Program
- Leyla's House
- Shanya Luther of Among Friends, Social Sexual Support Consultant
- Multnomah Education Service District Special Education and Community Transitions Program
- OHSU Institute on Development and Disability
- The Arc Multnomah-Clackamas

5. Generally, what are the grant's reporting requirements?

Funded entities will participate in a joint evaluation process throughout the funding cycle. As such, they will submit performance measures on a monthly basis and participate in evaluation activities related to their innovative program, as well as the overall grant program.

Please complete for NOIs on the Regular Board Agenda ONLY:
