May Statistic of the Month: Auditors' Survey of Multnomah County Citizens

For the past four years, the Portland Auditor's Office and the County Auditor have jointly conducted a citizens' survey to provide information on citizen satisfaction with a number of public services provided in our county. The results discussed below are from the most recent survey, conducted in September 1997. About 12,000 surveys were sent to randomly selected households in Multnomah County. About 5200 surveys were returned, for a return rate of 43%.

- Library hours were reduced in July 1997, so it's not surprising to see a drop in ratings. Overall quality ratings of good or very good increased from 81% in 1994 to 86% in 1996, but dropped to 76% in 1997.
- Every component (hours, location, book availability, assistance and children's programs) of the overall quality rating saw a decline in 1997 over 1996.
- The largest drop in satisfaction (again, no surprise) was hours. Those who reported being very satisfied or satisfied with hours dropped from 77% in 1996 to 53% in 1997, a decline of 45%. This decline in satisfaction is commensurate with the reduction in hours systemwide.
- The other drops in satisfaction amounted to three to five percentage points.
- Generally, Gresham residents were more satisfied with library services and overall quality in 1997 than residents of Portland or residents of the smaller cities and unincorporated areas.
- Reported visits to Central or one of the branches have moved back up to the 1994 levels. Again, this isn't surprising, since Central and Midland are now completed and fully on-line. What remains surprising is that some many people still self-report not visiting either Central (52%) or a branch (39%) during the last year.
- Telephone contacts with the library have remained constant, with 40% of those surveyed reporting that they contacted the library by telephone in both 1997 and 1996. These years are up from 1995 and 1994.
- Contacts by computer continue to rise each year. In 1997, 13% reported having used the library through computer connection. This is an increase of 117% since 1994. We expect this figure to continue to increase as more and more users choose to access our services in this manner.

Multnomah County Library

Comparison to 10 Comparable Libraries

For the last eight years, Multnomah County has compared itself to ten other libraries as a way to measure itself against libraries that are comparable in terms of population served, leaders in the public library world, or regional counterparts.

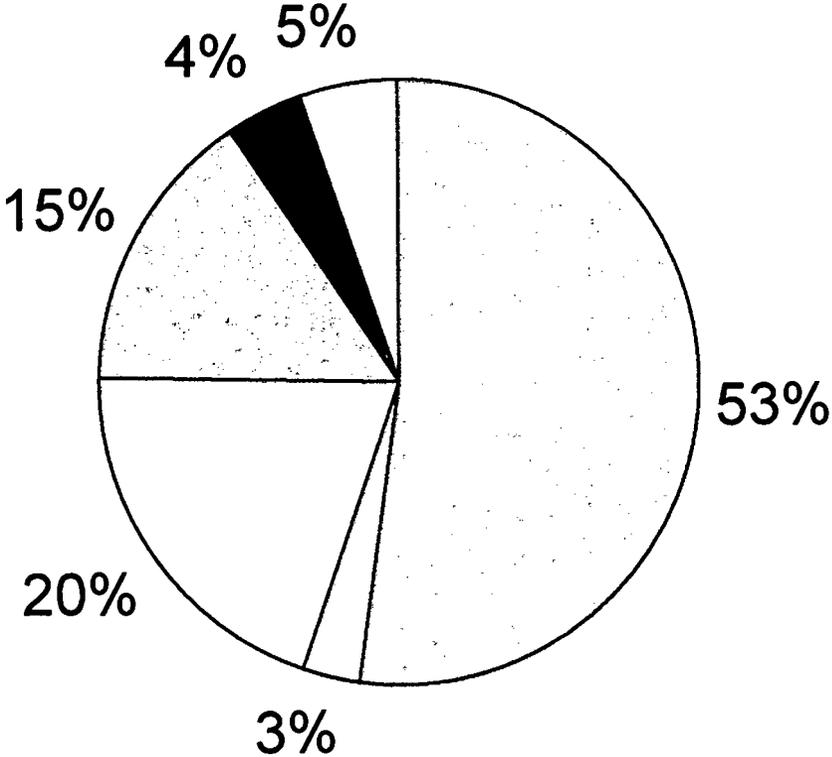

Boston Public, Milwaukee (WI) Public, D. C. Public Library (Washington, DC), Cuyahoga County (Ohio), and the Dayton & Montgomery County (Ohio) library all serve about the same population as Multnomah County.

The Cleveland, and Hennepin County (MN) libraries are widely regarded as leaders in the library world and are used for benchmark purposes.

The King County (WA) and Seattle Public libraries are also leaders as well as regional counterparts.

Neither King County nor Hennepin County have central libraries, which does have an influence on their service and staffing mixes.

BRANCH RENOVATION UPDATE

September 14, 1998

This is a brief update on the status of each of the branch renovation projects.

Albina:

We are still in the process of negotiating a rental agreement with Nature's for the renovated space for the Albina Branch Library. Before this can be completed, Nature's must determine the cost of the renovation work (we will pay for this through our rental costs). The construction schedule will be determined after the lease is signed. We've notified Nature's that we need to have notice of eight weeks before construction begins. We're hoping that closure, renovation and re-opening of the library will take place before the North Portland Branch Library closes for renovation (in mid-February 1999).

Belmont:

An intensely interested crowd of community residents attended the August 18 public meeting at Belmont to question architect Thomas Hacker about the design for the expanded branch. People are very concerned that the addition to this historic building be respectful of the original design. The meeting was lively, with a great deal of participation by many of those attending. By the end of the meeting, the mood of most of those attending was very positive.

Work on the design is continuing. Belmont is currently scheduled to close in June 1999; the branch will be closed for about 1 year.

Capitol Hill:

We're on schedule. Trenching of the floor has been completed and conduit is being laid. Plumbing work will be finished by the end of this week. We expect that the branch will re-open in mid-February 1999.

Gregory Heights:

The Gregory Heights project is also on schedule. Conduit is nearly all in place. Asbestos abatement (of floor tile) is completed and plumbing work is well under way. Gregory Heights is scheduled to re-open in early January.

Gresham:

The ductwork for this branch has been completed. Framing for the new walls has also been completed. Workers are preparing for the installation of new mechanical heating and air conditioning units on the roof. The City of Gresham is planning some improvements in the parking lot (which they own); this work will be completed by the time that the branch re-opens. All of the work is on schedule, and the branch is scheduled to re-open in mid-November (in time for the city's holiday kick-off celebrations).

Hillsdale:

We are continuing to work on siting issues for this new replacement library. There is community interest in 4 sites (the current site with additional property east of the branch; the ODOT triangle; and two Wilson High School sites, one on the east and one on the west side of the Wilson High School access driveway off Sunset). We are looking further into property issues concerning those sites, plus preparing site plans and some architectural elevations for possible library buildings on those sites. We're also working closely with Portland's Transportation Department on access and traffic issues. The next public meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. on October 14 (at the Hillsdale Branch Library).

Holgate:

Work on this branch (Capitol Hill's twin) is on schedule, and will begin after Woodstock re-opens (in late 1999/early 2000).

Hollywood:

Bob Oberst, Multnomah County's Property Manager, is working on the purchase of four properties making up the site at N.E. Tillamook between 40th and 41st. He has reached agreement with two owners and is waiting for a response from a third owner. He expects to hear from attorneys for Dania Furniture Company, the fourth owner, some time this week. If he's successful in reaching agreement with all four owners, the matter will go before the Board of County Commissioners for approval for purchase of the properties.

North Portland:

Construction documents for this branch have been completed; they will be submitted for building permits on September 25. Closure of the branch is tentatively scheduled for mid-February 1999. Once construction begins, we anticipate that the branch will be closed about one year.

Rockwood:

We are ready to begin the work at Rockwood as soon as the Gresham Regional Library re-opens. Branch closure is tentatively scheduled for early December 1998; construction will take about 6-7 months.

St. Johns:

We are still at the beginning of schematic design for this branch. At the public meeting at the branch on June 9, residents' primary concern related to the time and length of closure (and the relative isolation of St. Johns patrons from other library services). We've met once with some members of the community to try to find ways to continue some library service (particularly for young children) during the St. Johns Branch closure, and plan to meet again for this purpose. St. Johns is currently scheduled to close for renovation in mid-2000, but construction may begin sooner.

Sellwood-Moreland:

We're continuing to discuss options for this branch. Work on the branch is scheduled for late in the construction process.

Woodstock:

We're on schedule with Woodstock, and have the conditional use permit. We expect that Woodstock will close early in December 1998. Construction of this new building will take about one year.

NEW BRANCH PROJECTS:Parkrose:

The Parkrose Cooperative Library, a partnership between the Parkrose School District and Multnomah County Library, opened on September 8, 1998. The library is located in the Parkrose High School Community Center at 12003 N.E. Shaver.

Fairview-Columbia Branch Library:

Multnomah County's Property Manager is in negotiations for a new leased site (in the "market square" area of Fairview Village, with good visibility and access from two arterial streets). We hope to have a new branch of 3,500 - 4,000 square feet opening in East Multnomah County in late spring of 1999. This new building will be a mixed-use facility, with apartments on the floor above the library.

Northwest Portland:

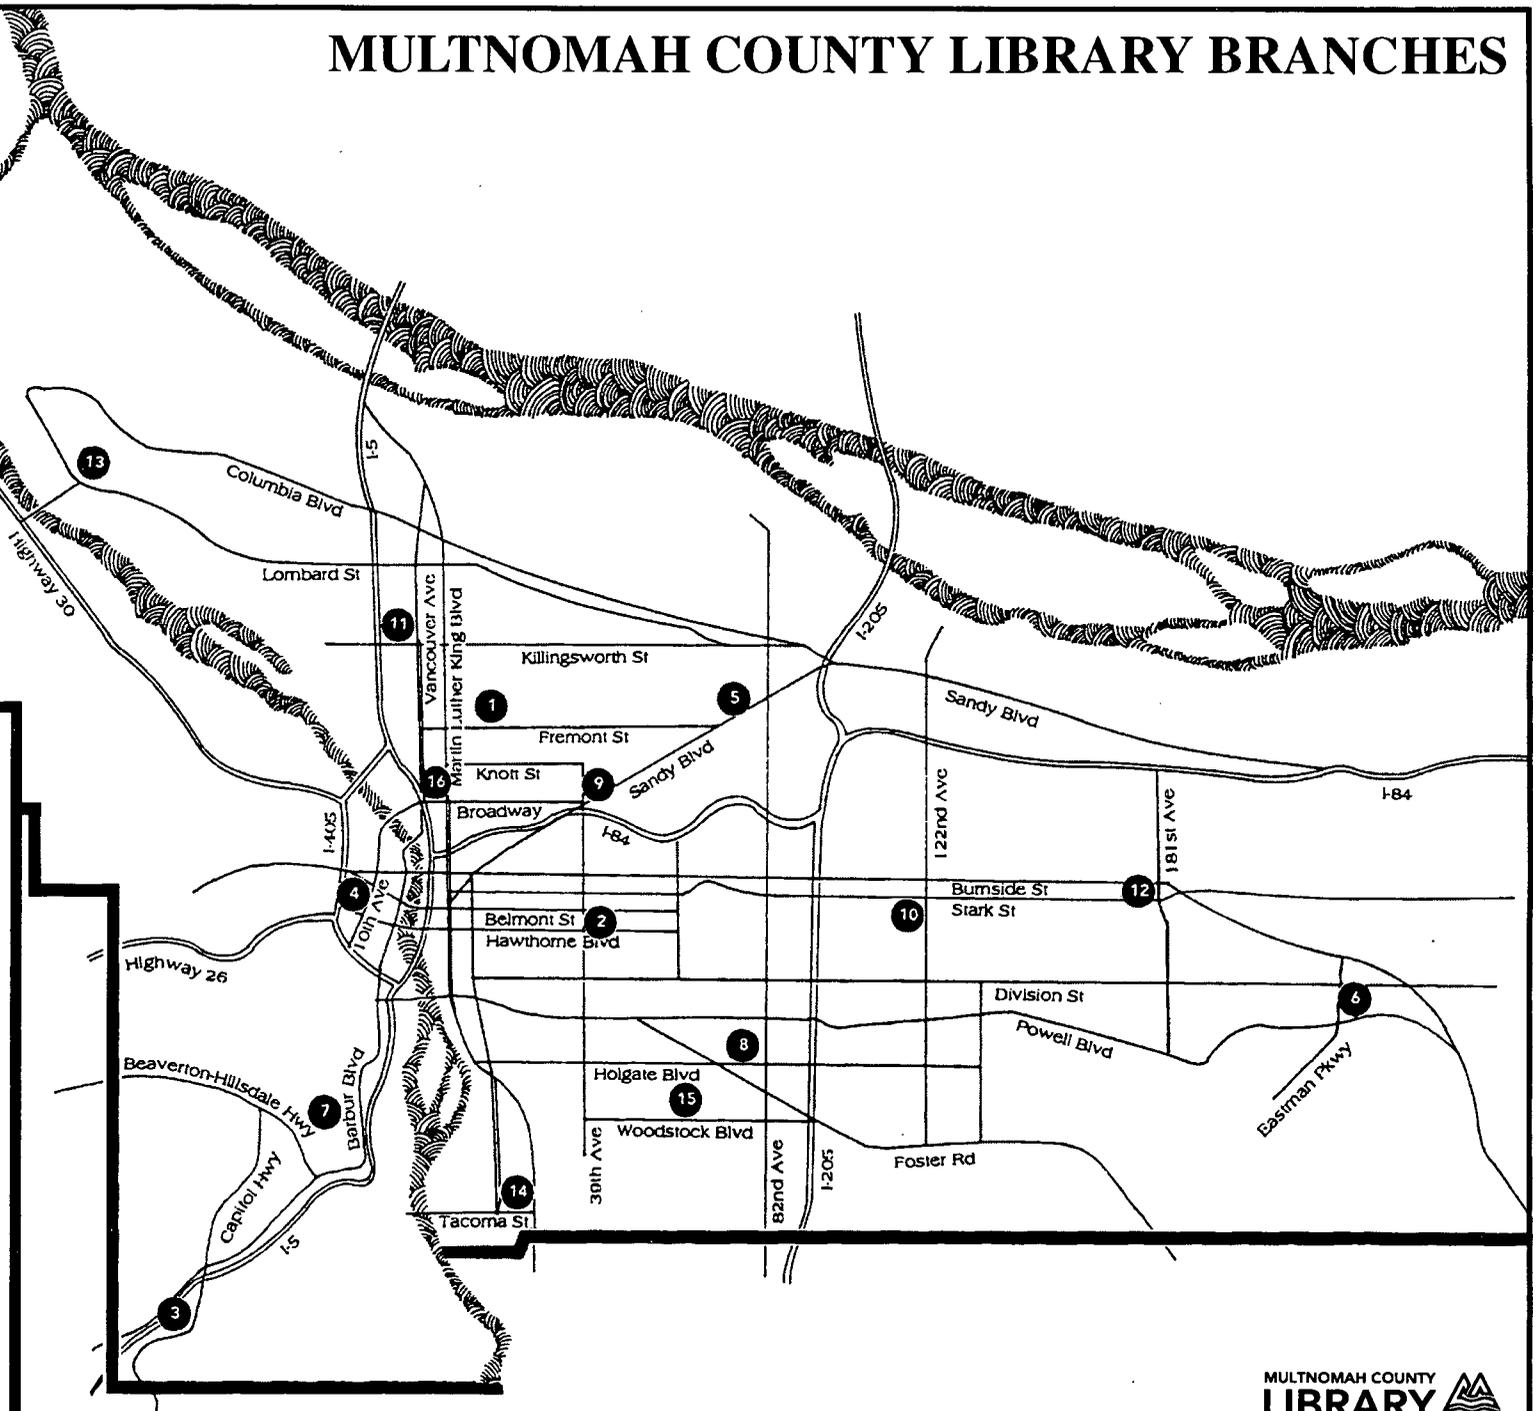

We're continuing to work with representatives of the Westside Community Development Corporation to explore the possibility of a mixed-use development in Northwest Portland. We've shared the Albina Branch Library's floor plans and lighting plans with the Westside CDC for them to use in preparing an estimate of what the rented library space would cost. We should have information about costs by the middle of this week. Very preliminary plans call for a ground floor, 5,000 square feet library space with medium-income housing on five or six floors above the library.

Early Childhood Resources Multnomah County Library

Multnomah County Library's Early Childhood Resources is a unique combination of outreach programs and specialized library materials serving children pre-birth to kindergarten, their families and caregivers. Programs are coordinated by an early childhood specialist and early childhood assistants. Staff work closely with the early childhood community to promote library services and act as a liaison between both entities. Practicum students from Portland State University's Child and Family Studies program and numerous volunteers are needed each year to support the variety of programs and services.

By providing an environment rich in language, through talking, listening and reading to children, parents and caregivers build the experiential and linguistic foundations necessary for future reading and academic success. The goal of all the Early Childhood Resources outreach programs is to support parents and caregivers in this process.

CHILD CARE OUTREACH

CHILD CARE CENTER PROGRAM places children's picture books in private or public child care centers and Head Start programs. Every two months a center receives a box of 50 paper bound books. Visits to exchange book collections are also an opportunity to speak with directors and teachers, sharing information about library resources, trainings and networking opportunities.

FAMILY CHILD CARE PROGRAM brings Storytime Mentors (trained volunteers) into family child care providers' homes weekly for four weeks to model appropriate book selection, effective storytime techniques, extended literacy activities and positive adult/child interactions. Picture books and curriculum materials presented at the storytime are left at the provider's home between visits. Following the mentorship, providers are given a deposit collection rotated bi-monthly. Providers must attend an orientation training to participate in the program with additional trainings presented throughout the year.

EARLY CHILDHOOD RESOURCES TRAININGS for center and family child care providers are presented at various library sites by area clinicians approximately six times each year. The free trainings are designed to meet the requirements for state and child care self-certification standards. Training topics have included discipline, parent-provider relations, developmentally appropriate practices, professionalism, child abuse and curriculum areas such as science, music, circle activities, puppet making, books and storytelling.

PARENT EDUCATION PROGRAMS

BEGINNING WITH BOOKS is a parent education program designed to provide a positive model of sharing books with children, to encourage reading regularly to children and to help create a love of books in children. Beginning With Books visits social service agencies, including high school teen parent classes, substance abuse programs, WIC food programs, domestic violence homes, and parent/child development centers. Story reading is modeled and direct instruction given to parents to encourage early literacy activities. In addition, each facility receives a collection of 25 age appropriate books. These books are exchanged with a different set at the next scheduled visit.

BORN TO READ is an emergent literacy program for expectant and new parents. Working with agencies that provide parent education and pre-natal classes, the coordinator discusses ways parents can help their children learn about reading and presents the Born To Succeed video or its Spanish counterpart, La Llave del Exito. The videos were produced by Early Childhood Resources to encourage parents to begin reading to their infants and to continue through childhood, establishing a pattern of lifelong learning. Participants are then drawn into their local library through book give-aways.

(Born To Read is an American Library Association pilot project. ALA has granted permission to duplicate the program concept.)

ADDITIONAL RESOURCES AND SERVICES

BOOKS WHILE YOU WAIT uses trained volunteers to deliver children's books to waiting rooms and lobbies where parents and children are waiting for medical or social services. Picture books and easy readers are provided in English, Spanish, Russian and Vietnamese. Each month volunteers visit approximately 30 sites to replace and exchange the collections. Sites include city, county and state agencies such as medical, dental and mental health facilities; corrections field offices and jails; and welfare offices.

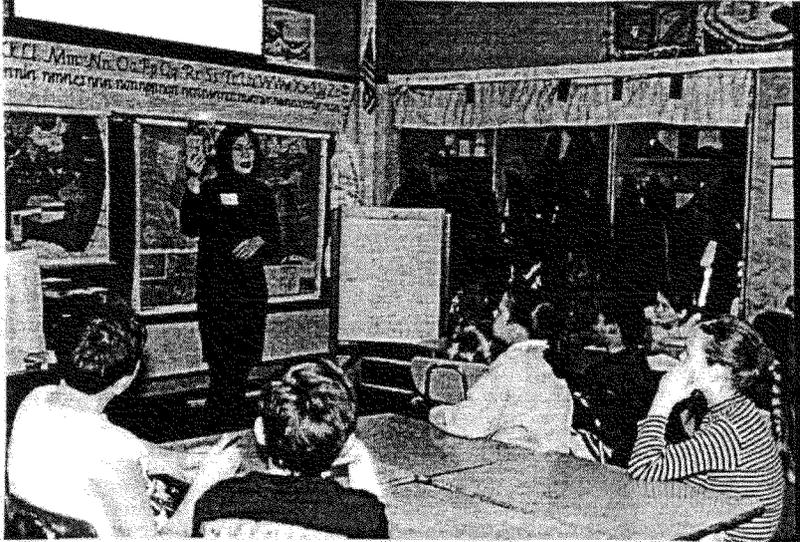

EARLY CHILDHOOD RESOURCE CENTERS, created for childhood care and education providers and educators, offer curriculum, child development and professional development materials. The "It's In The Bag" collection is an extensive gathering of curriculum materials to be used in the classroom. The 125 theme bags in English and Spanish contain three to five picture books; a related activity such as a toy, puzzle or flannel story; and a curriculum guide. Developed by an early childhood consultant, the guides assist teachers in creating a whole experience around the theme. The curriculum guide is written so that even a beginning teacher can use the materials effectively. The collection is offered at Albina, Capitol Hill, Central, Holgate and Rockwood Libraries.

EARLY CHILDHOOD RESOURCES (ECR) markets Born To Succeed (English) and La Llave del Exito (Spanish), two videos of young parents talking about the importance of reading with their children. Also available is the Eensy Weensy Rhyme Book, a book of favorite children's rhymes.

BOOKS 2 U

The Books 2 U program uses highly trained volunteer booktalkers to encourage and re-inspire elementary school students to read for personal enjoyment and to become library users. The service is provided in grades three, four and five at targeted elementary schools throughout Multnomah County.

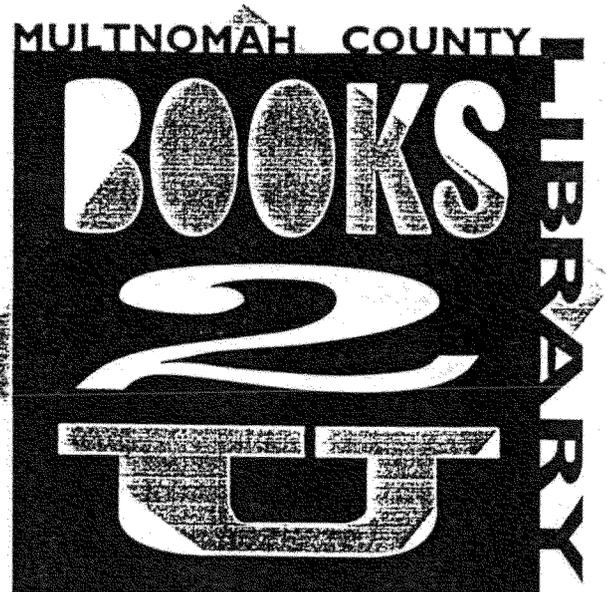

Our Goals

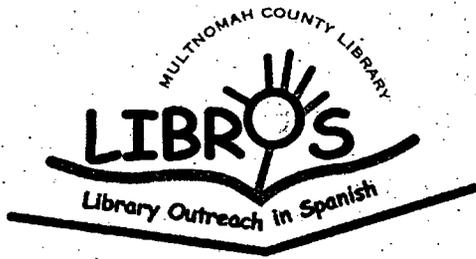

- ◆ To encourage students to read for personal enjoyment and to practice the reading skills acquired in school.
- ◆ To reach targeted language and cultural groups with information on the library and its services.
- ◆ To increase library usage of students in the program
- ◆ To promote library services and programs for students and their families.

Books 2 U is currently serving 30 elementary schools in four school districts throughout Multnomah County. During the summer the program visits Boys & Girls Clubs, federal lunch programs, parks and community centers, churches, Housing Authority of Portland sites, Title I programs and the Self Enhancement, Inc. Center. The youth served range from babies to young teenagers.

High interest paperbacks are used by the booktalkers in the classrooms and during summer visits. Children are able to check the books out directly from the volunteer. Books 2 U collections (all titles) are available at the following branches: Albina, Belmont, Gregory Hts., Holgate, Hollywood, Midland, North Portland, Rockwood, St. John's, Woodstock and Central Library.

Two-year program at Multnomah County Library with funds granted by the Oregon State Library under the Library Services and Technology Act. The purpose of this outreach program is to introduce books and other library materials in Spanish, present and coordinate programs for Spanish-speaking children and families, and help regular library services and programs be accessible to the Spanish-speaking population in Multnomah County.

Goals

First year of the program:

- To coordinate with other outreach programs for the summer reading program
- To assemble a collection of books in Spanish to make them available to children eighth grade and under, childcare, preschool, and Migrant Head Start programs
- To reach Spanish-speaking children by providing books directly to them
- To provide programs about the library and its services for Spanish-speaking parents
- To serve the high proportion of Spanish-speaking clients in juvenile detention
- To create and promote a Spanish language page for the Library's website

Second year of the program:

- To continue and improve services already established
- To enhance services to Spanish-speaking youth in county middle and high schools
- To create and/or translate Spanish language Multnomah County Library brochures and booklists

Services

A Spanish Outreach Specialist and volunteers deliver the services. The program's services will be targeted to Housing Authority of Portland sites, Migrant Head Start programs, elementary, middle, and high schools, and other locations with a high concentration of the Latino population.

For more information contact Marcela Villagran, Spanish Outreach Specialist at Library Administration at 736-6112 or marcelav@nethost.multnomah.lib.or.us.

Juvenile Justice Outreach Grant 1997-98:

The Juvenile Justice Outreach program brings library services to the Multnomah County Juvenile Detention Center.

The grant provides supplemental materials to the Donald E Long School (the school in the detention center) and provides technology training to the youth in the classrooms on the use of the Internet and the Multnomah County Library's computer catalog.

The grant provides a rotating collection of recreational paperbacks that are booktalked to the youth in the living quarters by both the Project Coordinator of the grant and by volunteers she has trained. This also includes book discussions with the youth about the books they've read.

The grant includes the purchase and presentation of books and videos on making better life choices and on careers. The career component will also include guest speakers who will talk about their vocation.

Juvenile Justice Outreach Grant 1998-99:

Year two of the Juvenile Justice Outreach Grant expands the library services to six residential facilities that have adjudicated youth including youth who have been in the Juvenile Detention Center. The facilities include Youth Progress, House of Umoja, Outfront House, Morrison Center Break-through, DePaul Youth Treatment Center and Pettrygrove House.

The grant provides a rotating collection of recreational paperbacks that are booktalked to the youth in the residential facilities and includes book discussions by the youth of the titles they've read.

The grant continues all the services at the Multnomah County Juvenile Detention Center that were provided in Year one of the grant.

This program is funded by a Library Services and Technology Act federal grant through the Oregon State Library.

School Corps

School Corps Services

This is a general list of the services the Multnomah County Library School Corps can provide at your location. We are happy to tailor a presentation to meet the audience's needs. Please allow a two-week lead time for presentations that are modified for your group. The length of the presentations can be adjusted to meet your needs, but a minimum time is included in the descriptions. Some presentations require special equipment; these needs are also noted. All of our services are free of charge.

Electronic Resources

THE MULTNOMAH COUNTY LIBRARY

School Corps

is an innovative program that connects students and teachers with the critical information resources of the public library. The goal of the School Corps is to increase the information literacy of students in Multnomah County by working in partnership with local schools.

A professional staff of five librarians works to support curriculum and increase student and faculty awareness and use of print and electronic information resources available through the public library.

School Corps staff work in cooperation with teachers, media specialists, and school library staff to create materials and services that assist students in the efficient and effective use of the public library and its resources. The School Corps serves all Multnomah County schools, grades K-12.

“Presenter was excellent — did a great job holding the students’ interest.”

— Joanne LaCroix, 3rd/4th grade teacher
Meek Elementary, Portland Public Schools

School Corps

services include:

- ✓ instruction in the local and remote use of DYNA (Multnomah County Library's catalog), Searchbank/Magazines Online (a database of full-text articles and citations) and World Wide Web information resources;
- ✓ training in how to use Multnomah County Library to complete research projects and homework assignments;
- ✓ library cards for every student and staff member;
- ✓ Assignment Alert program to allow teachers to notify the public library of upcoming homework and research assignments, ensuring that the library has the materials teachers and students need;
- ✓ specialized services including booktalks, booklists, webliographies (annotated lists of websites), and pathfinders (guides to help students navigate through the wealth of Multnomah County Library information resources).

"Everybody loves the webliographies; they have been especially appreciated by the teachers." — Karen Gaddis-Philips, media specialist, Sam Barlow High School, Gresham-Barlow School District

"I'm so glad you have this service. Hopefully my students will begin to use the library. Many of them have never been there before."

— Diane Wetzel, Title I coordinator, Alice Ott Middle School, David Douglas School District

Programs for all ages at Multnomah County libraries

Multnomah County libraries offer hundreds of fun (and free!) programs for all ages. Program and event information can also be found on the library's web site at www.multnomah.lib.or.us/lib/ or see your librarian.

For a listing of class dates, arranged by library, see overleaf.

New Hours/Summer Reading Wrap-Up Celebration Sept. 12

Celebrate the expanded hours at all libraries and a successful Summer Reading program on Saturday, Sept. 12 from noon-5 p.m. at the Central Library.

The day kicks off with music by Los Palmeros, the Mazel Tov Orchestra performing Klezmer and Israeli music, the Kenny Grave's Blues Project, and Quartette Barquette, a saxophone quartet performing classical, jazz and 20th century music explorations.

Kids can join the children's chalk mural project or make their own musical instruments. Presentation of the Summer Reading Grand Prize will be at 1 p.m.

Tours of the Central Library will happen all day long and other festivities are planned for all ages.

Funded by Arts-in-Libraries, a partnership between Multnomah County Library and the Neighborhood Arts Program of the Regional Arts and Culture Council.

Libraries offer storytimes and other reading programs for preschoolers

Storytimes are a good way to introduce young people to the library. At library storytimes, stories, songs and seasonal crafts are presented to a small group by a youth librarian who can also answer questions about books, library programs and reading in general. Family storytimes are for ages 6 years and younger and younger children must be accompanied by an adult. Book Babies is for babies ages 6-18 months unless otherwise noted. Toddler storytimes are for ages 18-36 months with adult (except at libraries with Tiny Tots programs). Building Blocks to Literacy programs are for ages 3 and 4 and preschool storytimes are for ages 3-6 years.

For more information about storytimes or other events, check the library's web site (www.multnomah.lib.or.us/lib/) from your home computer or the next time you visit the library.
