Sauvie Island has the potential to be a great recreational and fun destination for people to ride around mostly flat, bucolic farmlands while supporting local agriculture. Banning cycling is the complete wrong approach here.

What should be done is to create a new TriMet bus route to connect to the #16 and circulate around the island to various farms and businesses. Then create parallel bike paths to the main roads so that people riding don't have to share space with people driving trucks and farm equipment.
