as the Week of the Young Child	)	95-79
in Multnomah County, Oregon	)

WHEREAS we recognize that children are the citizens of the future; and

WHEREAS the overall development of each child depends on making the most of their early years to provide a basis for optimal intellectual, social, emotional, and physical well-being; and

WHEREAS children must be allowed to make the most of these developing years in an atmosphere that teaches them to value their own abilities and appreciate the abilities of people from diverse cultures and heritages; and

WHEREAS it is up to the adults of today to provide the high quality child care needed for children to achieve these goals through a partnership of concerned parents and professional caregivers; and

WHEREAS by recognizing the importance of high quality early childhood services, we hope to improve the quality and the availability of these services within our community; and

WHEREAS the Week of the Young Child is a project of the National Association for the Education of Young Children.

THEREFORE, the week of April 23 to 29, 1995 is PROCLAIMED to be the Week of the Young Child, in Multnomah County, Oregon.

APPROVED this 20th day of April, 1995.
