General Information

1. What action are you requesting from the Board?

The Department of County Human Services (DCHS) is requesting approval of budget modification DCHS13-21. This budget modification increases Domestic Violence Coordination Office (DVCO) fiscal year 2013 budget by $138,755. This new funding was awarded to the DVCO from Department of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) for the Defending Childhood Initiative (DCI) – Phase 3 in the amount of one million dollars. This grant will enhance and expand capacity into the community by providing contracted mental health consultants, a domestic violence child/family advocate, and adding a 1.00 FTE Limited Duration Research Evaluation Analyst 2 position per Class/Comp request #2114.

2. Please provide sufficient background information for the Board and the public to understand this issue. Please note which Program Offer this action affects and how it impacts the results.

This budget modification increases Program Offer #25040A- Domestic Violence Victims Services and Coordination budget by $138,755.

In October 2010, Multnomah County was selected as one of 8 communities to participate in a national initiative to pilot ways to improve responses to children exposed to violence. Preventing and addressing violence as early as possible is imperative to reducing crime, and addressing violence exposure also improves long-term outcomes for children and families in all aspects including health, mental health, academic success, healthy relationships.

In our first year, we convened a broad advisory group and conducted a comprehensive local needs assessment to understand the types and prevalence of violence locally, which parts of our community, are most impacted, and the strengths and weaknesses of our current responses.

Our needs assessment found that violence exposure in our community is widespread and mirrored national trends: many kids are exposed to violence (40% direct violence and 60% indirect exposure by the time they are 17), that exposure to one form of violence is a risk marker for exposure to others, and that kids and families exposed to multiple types of violence have worse outcomes across their lifespan.

Our needs assessment identified four primary ways that children & youth are exposed to violence locally: domestic violence, child maltreatment (physical abuse, sexual abuse, and neglect); teen dating and sexual violence; and bullying. We also noted that gang violence has a significant adverse impact on specific communities.

Finally, we found that expertise and awareness of violence issues and associated risk factors tends to be siloed by discipline: people see what they are trained to respond to – and interventions tend to be based on what the program has to offer, not necessarily everything the child or family needs.

Based on this needs assessment, we developed strategic plan that emphasized training and capacity building, with the goal of strengthening the skills and knowledge of the programs and staff that are already serving children and families in our community, and were awarded an additional $500,000 to implement this over three years. Our current efforts are department-wide, including the SUN system and Mental Health and Addiction Services, as well as the Health Department's Community Capacitation Center.

In our planning, we also identified some of the places where we'd like to add capacity to serve children, youth and families at highest risk of violence, both in terms of service needs and location, and that is the primary focus of this new Phase 3 grant proposal.

This new grant - $1 million over three years - will extend the initiative's timeline and for one additional year, through September 30, 2015. This includes 1.00 FTE for the project coordinator for the final year, and 1.00 FTE research & evaluation analyst within DCHS for 3 years to help us evaluate the impact of our efforts, and 3.00 FTE in community based organizations providing direct services to families.
