About the Cover

The cover is a reproduction of an engraving, described as "Bridge Across the Willamette, Between Columbia Street, Portland and Asylum Street, East Portland, Now in Course of Construction" (OrHi 95713). It is part of the collection of the Oregon Historical Society, located at 1200 SW Park Avenue in downtown Portland. The engraving is a rendering of one of the precursors to the Hawthorne Bridge – either Madison Street Bridge No. 1 or No. 2.

The bridge, originally the Madison Street Bridge, is now called the Hawthorne Street Bridge. It is named after Dr. J. C. Hawthorne who moved to Oregon in 1859 and helped found the Oregon Hospital for the Insane, which was located on Asylum and 12th Street in East Portland. The street was renamed Hawthorne in 1888, five years after the hospital was moved to Salem. There have been three structures on this site. The original bridge was constructed in 1891, the second bridge in 1900. The current structure replaced it in 1910.

In 1893, on Madison Bridge No. 1, a motorman disregarded the bridge's red light during heavy early morning fog, and the trolley car Inez tumbled into the Willamette's murky water. Seven people drowned. In 1901, a fire destroyed an iron works company and swept away six blocks of the eastside waterfront, including Madison Bridge No. 2's eastern approach.

Hawthorne Street Bridge

The current Hawthorne Street Bridge, designed by John Alexander Low Waddell, opened December 19, 1910 at a cost of $500,000 and is the oldest operating vertical lift span bridge in the world. It is eligible for listing in the National Historic Register. The bridge is, however, showing wear and will be closed during the next year for approximately 12 months for painting and deck replacement.

A variety of commuters – trucks, cars, bikers and walkers – depend on the Hawthorne Bridge. The number of bridge users is substantial enough that the Hawthorne Bridge is recognized as a main artery for crossing the Willamette River. To continue carrying this traffic, the bridge needs vital repairs and improvements.

- the Hawthorne's paint has completely failed in many places exposing metal surfaces to the effects of corrosion and deterioration. The old lead-based paint must be removed and replaced.
- the current bridge deck, which was installed in 1945, is worn and must be replaced. The deck is the grated surface where cars and trucks travel to cross the bridge. If the rehabilitation work is not completed soon, bus and truck travel will be restricted and the service life of the bridge will be dramatically shortened.
- the support system needs to be upgraded. The counterweight ropes, which are responsible for raising the vertical lift, may need replacement.

This current project is Phase III of a four-phase rehabilitation program which began in 1985. Phase IV, not yet scheduled, will include seismic upgrades.
