Ore. lawmaker Chris Garrett named to state appeals court

SALEM, Ore. (AP) - Gov. John Kitzhaber has appointed a state legislator to Oregon Court of Appeals.

Kitzhaber said in a statement Tuesday that Democratic Rep. Chris Garrett of Lake Oswego will fill the vacancy created when Judge David Schuman retires in February.

"Chris Garrett has been a vocal and effective advocate for the rule of law and the vitality of Oregon's courts," Kitzhaber said in a statement. "He has earned the respect of people from all walks of life for his intellect and ability to find common ground among divergent views."

Garrett is a business litigator with the firm Perkins Coie. As a legislator, he's had a number of leadership roles. This year, he helped broker a budget-cutting deal on prison sentences aimed at stopping the steep rise in inmate populations

The court has 13 members.

Garrett's departure from the Legislature will mean he will not serve in the upcoming February 2014 legislative session, according to his office.

Democratic precinct committee members from Garrett's House District 38 in both Multnomah and Clackamas counties will recommend three to five people to both county commissions.

County commissioners will then decide who will replace Garrett from that pool. Because of the population spread in District 38, Multnomah County will have more weight (60 percent) in deciding Garrett's successor to fill out the remainder of his term.
