The Center for Care Innovations (CCI), along with Blue Shield of California Foundation and Kaiser Permanente, has released a funding opportunity to bolster capacity within its Safety Net Innovation Network. The program is designed for organizations who are shifting payments models away from fee-for-service to a capitated (value-based) payment system. The requested funding is to be used for staff time and travel to receive technical assistance from CCI and its partners. If funded, the project will begin in August, and the Health Department will receive technical assistance and roll-out the telephone visit pilot over the next year. The expected results of the pilot are 1) more patient-friendly services (i.e., mitigating barriers to care such as travel and missing work); 2) better health outcomes for patients with acute and complex/chronic medical conditions; and 3) increased provider productivity. If the pilot is successful, telephone visits will be gradually implemented through the Health Department's primary care system.
