"Oregon's Oldest Yacht Brokerage"

Madam Chairman Diane Linn and County Commissioners

I am Bill Babaeckos, moorage owner and importer. I have been on the Columbia river since 1954. I have reviewed your documents on the budget. There is very little in the budget that talks about your responsibility for continuing public safety. I attended your first public budget meeting, and I do not envy you with all of the emotions and problems that you have to deal with.

Nothing was mentioned about September 11th and the problems with world terrorism, which is a national and local problem. The American culture and lifestyle lends itself to an open society, but more vulnerable to terrorism than most countries. President Bush reaffirms that we are at war with terrorist who would destroy our way of life.

My concerns are with our water related securities and with law enforcement agencies that are already stretched to its limits. These problems are not going away in the immediate future.

Chairman Linn's press release said that the budget problems are related to the faltering economy. There are going to be greater problems since 9-11-01.

There are dangers in my community that I am concerned about, and I would not like to put these on this paper, but I feel it must be said.

I will give you a number of illustrations that could devastate our economy if any one of these among many others could happen here.

1) Bonneville Dam, Ship locks. - All bulk products, fuel, grains, etc .. move up and down the river and are vital to the health of our economy. One damaged lock would take 9 to 12 months to repair.

2) The towers that support the major electrical transmission wires across the Columbia river would take months to repair, and we would be without full power for months.

3) Commerce that flows over the I-5 and I-205 bridges is vital to our community and commerce. Damage to either or both bridges would take years to repair.

4) There are normally 4 or 5 freighters anchored below the I5 bridge. Crew members have access to our community, they are undocumented and require surveillance.

5) Fuel tank storage, chemical, hazardous waste material, are all stored along many areas. Let your imagination tell you what that could do to this community.

6) Portland is divided by the Willamette river and numerous bridges that commuters depends upon. Damage to these structures would wreak havoc on this community.

7) The terminals on the Willamette and Columbia river handle huge amounts of cargo daily. Any damage to those would stop that commerce. There are many items and infrastructures in our community, reservoirs, transportation, utilities, that are susceptible to damage.

I have attached a copy of the Oregonian, on what the ports are doing on the west coast. A ship coming into our town could create untold damage to our community by terrorists.

It has been rumored that some county commissioners want to get rid of the Multnomah county law enforcement for reasons not known to me. This is a mistake. You need to reinforce the law enforcement agencies that you have.

Since September 11th, all federal, state, county, and city law enforcement agencies are working overtime to protect us. We have one of the best, professional, cross trained, law enforcement river patrol personel. These are seasoned officers who are dedicated to our safety. They know the rivers, they work them 365 days of the year, and they need our respect.

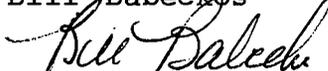

The US Coast Guard has requested the Multnomah County Sheriffs River Patrol to daily inspect 53 infrastructures, starting with Bonneville Dam, down the Columbia, up the Willamette, and also the Multnomah channel. The river patrol has 5 boats, 3 on the Columbia and 2 on the Willamette. The cruise about 20 mph and there is close to 100 miles in this area for inspection. This is going to be continuous. This will take a toll on the officers and their equipment and their budget.

You need to increase funding as their maintenance budget will not cover this increased use. Their fuel budget has to increase and you need to have them purchase some up to date electronics, night vision equipment, so that they can better respond to any terrorist problem.

I know your plate is full and you are doing the best you can with the funds you have, but this terrorist thing must not get out of control in our community. I am available for any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Bill Babeckos

Security tightened in Puget Sound in wake of attacks

Like other ports, Seattle is being more careful about its defenses, especially when it comes to cruise ships

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEATTLE — Security at Puget Sound seaports is coming under increasing scrutiny following the Sept. 11 attacks amid concerns that U.S. ports or the cruise ships that use them could be targeted.

In the nine years before the attacks on New York and the Pentagon, the Puget Sound Coast Guard issued only four formal citations for security violations, in addition to at least two informal warnings, after inspections at seven ports and two oil refineries.

Since the attacks, the Coast Guard has looked again at security plans for those facilities and issued 30 citations for deficiencies. All of those cited have addressed the problems, said Mike Moore, Coast Guard captain of the port.

"Clearly, the baseline that was acceptable before Sept. 11 is going to change," Moore told The Seattle Times. "The risk, the threat and the vulnerability is higher than previously thought."

All ports are required to comply with federal rules on storing hazardous materials and providing "adequate surveillance" of facilities. But rules do not set minimum standards for security plans.

Ports resisted standards

Congress is considering legislation that would standardize security rules. However, officials at ports nationwide, including Seattle, have resisted uniform standards.

"There's very much a business mindset at U.S. ports, and certainly here in Seattle. We see our role as an economic engine," said Port of Seattle spokesman Mick Shultz.

Security at marine ports is handled much like security at airports, where private companies train and supply most workers. Terminal operators determine the number, qualifications and pay of the security guards they hire.

In 1999, a presidential commission looked at 12 seaports around the country, including Tacoma's, and found significant lapses. Those included unfenced cargo yards, poorly trained security guards and insufficient standards for workers with access to sensitive areas.

The commission estimated each port would need to spend about $44 million to provide full security. Its recommendations were opposed by port officials in Congress. As recently as this summer, the American Association of Port Authorities went on record opposing a revised version of a port security reform bill.

Since the Sept. 11 attacks, the Coast Guard has increased its patrols, activated 2,700 reservists nationwide and required ships to give four days' notice before entering ports.

Moore said he would like to see the Port of Seattle follow the lead of other cities in firming up security.

High-level talks in works

"Each port has to make its own decision about what services it's going to provide," he said. "The Port of Seattle has decided not to do much security in their budget."

Shultz defended the port's stance, saying there have been no specific threats against Seattle facilities.

But the port's executive director, Mic Dinsmore, will travel to Washington, D.C., this week to meet with congressional and Department of Transportation officials on security.

"I'm not satisfied that we as a port and we as a nation are doing everything we need to do in the way of security, both at airports and seaports," Dinsmore said Friday. "I'm not satisfied that the nation has thought this through thoroughly enough."

The Port of Los Angeles has been more aggressive in its stance. Since Sept. 11, entering cargo ships have had armed escort, with officers from the port going aboard with Coast Guard personnel, securing the engine room and bridge, screening crew members and spot-checking cargo.

Bin Laden Is Not Lone Mastermind

By Timothy W. Maier

Osama bin Laden is the world's most notorious terrorist, but others are prepared to fill the void if he is captured or killed. Is it too late to stop a lasting legacy of fanaticism?

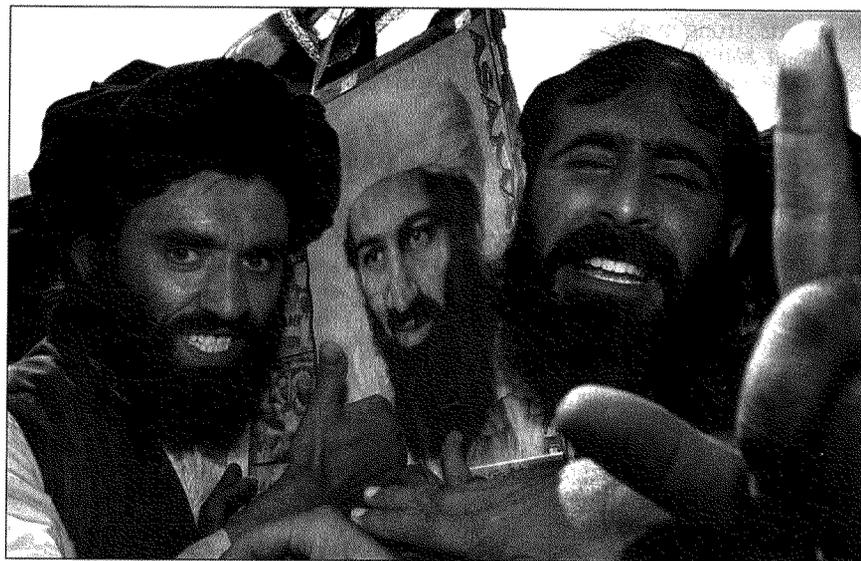

First, there is not the slightest doubt that Osama bin Laden, his worldwide allies and his sympathizers are planning further attacks against us," CIA Director George Tenet warned Congress. "Despite progress against his networks, bin Laden's organization has contacts virtually worldwide, including the United States — and he has stated unequivocally that all Americans are targets."

That warning was delivered in 1999, only a few months after the Clinton administration launched 75 to 80 cruise missiles at suspected terrorist training camps and pharmaceutical factories in Afghanistan and the Sudan in response to bin Laden and his al-Qaeda organization's role in the bombing of U.S. embassies in East Africa. Shortly after that U.S. strike, American intelligence intercepted a satellite telephone call from bin Laden's top lieutenant, Ayman al-Zawahiri, who apparently knew the United States was listening. It contained a message from bin Laden to the United States. "The war has just started," al-Zawahiri taunted. "The Americans should wait for an answer."

The answer came Sept. 11.

It is this sort of thing, along with additional intercepted communications and firsthand reports from material witnesses, that has confirmed bin Laden's pivotal role in the recent attacks. Yet there is growing speculation that bin Laden may not have been the lone mastermind behind the attack on the United States and, therefore, simply removing him from the picture will not win this 21st century war.

Bin Laden's right-hand man, al-Zawahiri, an Egyptian who served as an adviser and personal physician to bin Laden, may have been the mastermind, according to Jane's Intelligence Review, an insider intelligence letter. They both were indicted for the Aug. 7, 1998, bombing of the U.S. embassies in Africa and may be partners in more than one crime.

Jane's reports that Israel's military-intelligence service, Aman, claims that the men directing the mission included al-Zawahiri and a Lebanese man named Imad Mughniyeh, who is believed to have been part of a 1997 plot to blow up an Israeli El Al airliner above Tel Aviv. Jane's also reports that Saddam Hussein's son Qusay may have been a direct link between Iraqi intelligence and Mughniyeh, and suspects Iraq is the state that sponsored the suicide attacks on the World Trade Center towers in New York City and the Pentagon in Washington.

Hussein reportedly ordered Qusay, commander of the Special Security Forces in Iraq, to create a new terrorist force called the al-Nida to carry out "a number of secret missions" all over the world. Qusay activated dormant networks of Iraqi intelligence operations in the West to support bin Laden, notes Yossef Bodansky, an internationally renowned military-threat analyst and author of Bin Laden: The Man Who Declared War on America. One of their terrorist plots concerned the 2000 Summer Olympic Games in Australia. Local police foiled the scheme when a group of terrorists was caught after they beat up a Muslim who refused to join the group.

Mughniyeh already is one of the CIA's most-wanted terrorists for his direct role in the 1984 kidnapping, torture and killing of former CIA Beirut station chief William Buckley. Liberal Democrats used the kidnapping to launch a scandal when the Reagan administration attempted to trade arms to Iran for Buckley and others. Mughniyeh also is wanted in Argentina for blowing up an Israeli embassy in 1992, killing 92 innocent civilians.

Al-Zawahiri, who is believed to be stationed in Egypt, vowed to take revenge on the United States following the arrest of several Egyptian fanatical Islamists in 1998. "We are interested in briefly telling the Americans that their message has been received and that the response, which we hope they will read carefully, is being prepared, because we — with God's help — will write it in the language that they understand," al-Zawahiri said in a statement released by the Islamic Jihad Group.

That was three years ago, when U.S. intelligence agents believe the plot to attack the World Trade Center and the Pentagon was launched. While al-Zawahiri has not always agreed with bin Laden, intelligence specialists say, they are united by their hatred for the United States. Terrorists seldom are predictable, but Mughniyeh may be the most unpredictable of all. "The guy is a genius," Jane's points out, quoting an Israeli intelligence agent who also calls him "someone who refined the art of terrorism to its utmost level. We studied him and reached the conclusion that he is a clinical psychopath motivated by uncontrollable psychological reasons, which we have given up trying to understand. The killing of his two [terrorist] brothers [allegedly] by the Americans [in 1985 and 1994] only inflamed his strong motivation."

Threat analysts compare this new war to the never-ending war on drugs. There are many networks of terrorists operating worldwide, and agents have penetrated target countries as students or in unassuming jobs such as truck drivers. The terrorists could be neighbors, classmates or even colleagues. Al-Qaeda cells have been operating not only in Afghanistan but Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Jordan, Bangladesh, Qatar, Egypt, Libya, Lebanon, Algeria, Tunisia, Mauritania, the Sudan, Azerbaijan, Uzbekistan, Tajikistan, Chechnya, Somalia, Eritrea, Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda, Ethiopia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Uruguay, Ecuador, Bosnia, Kosovo, Albania, the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States, according to a Congressional Research Service

(CRS) report called Terrorism: Near Eastern Groups and State Sponsors 2001.

Bodansky reports that bin Laden has been able to unite a variety of Islamist terrorist organizations worldwide. "It is a story of dedicated zealots driven by hatred unacceptable and incomprehensible to a Westerner," Bodansky says. "They are ready to personally endure deprivations and death to force the Muslim world back onto the right path as they see it — even if this drive reverses the march of history in the process. And in the pursuit of their righteous goals, they are ready to punish the U.S.-led West for constituting an insurmountable challenge, for standing in their way by the mere existence of its values and affluence."

Bin Laden is the source of inspiration for thousands of followers who fight under the umbrella of the World Islamic Front for Jihad against "Jews and crusaders," intelligence sources say. He is flanked by al-Zawahiri and Ahmad Shawqi al-Islambuli, the Egyptian Islamist commander. But he has about 20 top lieutenants around the world and has "established a multilayered, redundant, resilient command structure made up of commanders from numerous countries," claims one of bin Laden's lieutenants, Ahmad al-Najjar, who remains in jail following his arrest on terrorism charges in 1998. "The Islamic Front can endure the arrests and killings of numerous commanders, including bin Laden and al-Zawahiri, and still be able to continue to expand and escalate its jihad against the United States," al-Najjar told Egyptian interrogators.

The threat is even more dangerous, Tenet told Congress in 1999, because bin Laden's is one of about a dozen terrorist groups that have expressed an interest in or have sought chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear agents. Bin Laden, for example, has called the acquisition of these weapons a "religious duty" and says it is "the duty of all Muslims to kill U.S. citizens, civilian or military, and their allies everywhere."

From where does such fanaticism come? Al-Qaeda was formed in 1990 to unite Arabs who fought in Afghanistan against the Soviet invasion. On a bankroll of about $300 million, bin Laden financed and trained about 3,000 terrorists to fight against "the Jews and crusaders," according to the CRS terrorist report. The group is composed of a coalition of disparate radical Islamic groups with the common goal being to expel non-Muslim control or influence from Muslim-inhabited lands, according to the CRS. It encompasses members from Islamic Group and Al-Jihad, Algeria's Armed Islamic Group, Pakistan's Harkat ul-Mujahideen, the Islamic Movement of Uzbekistan and opposition groups in Saudi Arabia.

Al-Qaeda was responsible for the 1998 bombings of the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania in which at least 224 were killed. It claims to have shot down U.S. helicopters and killed American servicemen in Somalia in 1992 and conducted at least three bombings that year against U.S. troop presence in Aden and Yemen. It also was linked to the attempted assassination of the Jordanian crown prince in 1993; the assassination attempt on the pope in 1994; the attempted assassination of Egypt's president Hosni Mubarak at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in 1995; a plot to kill President Bill Clinton in 1995; bombings at U.S. military installations in Riyadh and Dahrhan, Saudi Arabia, in 1995-1996 that killed 12 Americans; and the attack last year on the USS Cole that left 17 U.S. sailors dead.

Nearly eight years ago, bin Laden was not even on the public radar, but he was on the intelligence screen. He was not on the State Department's terrorist watch list or the FBI's most-wanted list until the 1993 World Trade Center bombing because the FBI was tracking his financial movements and was concerned he would be tipped off to its surveillance. Apparently it didn't matter, as the intelligence community lost sight of bin Laden in 1998. Intelligence expert James Bamford, the leading authority on collection of U.S. electronic intelligence and author of Body of Secrets, says bin Laden "changed his method of communications" after loose-lipped congressmen talked openly about intercepted telephone conversations he had with his step-mother.

While Bush presses to get bin Laden, dead or alive, the focus will turn to others. So who will be targeted next? The United States may have answered that recently by releasing a 22-page background report on the known terrorist groups. Here are some highlights of this recent State Department report:

- Al-Jihad is composed of two groups. Bin Laden personally operates the first, al-Qaeda in Afghanistan, and finances the second, the Vanguard of Conquest, led by Ahmad Husayn Agiza. Both groups are "increasingly willing to target U.S. interests in Egypt," the report notes. The original al-Jihad group was responsible for the assassination in 1981 of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. It is several thousand strong with networks in Egypt, Afghanistan, Pakistan, the United Kingdom and Sudan.

- The Abu Nidal organization (ANO) has carried out terrorists attacks in 20 countries, killing about 900 persons, including the 1985 airport attacks in Rome and Vienna. It operates out of Iraq and has a few hundred members in the Sudan, Syria and Lebanon. ANO assassinated a Jordanian diplomat in Lebanon in 1994. It is known to have targeted the United States, United Kingdom, France and others.

- Al-Gama'at al-Islamiyya is the largest militant group in Egypt. It signed on with bin Laden's call in February 1998 to attack U.S. civilians. For nearly a decade it has attacked tourists in Egypt, including the killing of 58 at Luxor in 1997. This group, composed of several thousand members in southern Egypt, took responsibility for the attempted assassination of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak in 1995.

- Harakat ul-Mujahideen (HUM), an Islamic militant group in Pakistan, also signed on with bin Laden's call in February 1998 to kill U.S. civilians. It operates camps in eastern Afghanistan. The State Department says HUM suffered heavy losses in the 1998 U.S. missile strikes on bin Laden-associated training camps in Khowst,

SALUJ AZHAP/WWP

Al-Qaeda's targets: Allegedly have included the U.S. Embassy in Kenya, top, and sailors aboard the USS Cole.

Afghanistan. Its leader, Fazlur Rehman, subsequently declared that HUM would take "revenge on the United States." Several thousand members strong, HUM has conducted numerous operations against Indian troops and civilian targets in Kashmir.

- Hezbollah (Party of God) is a radical Shia group formed in Lebanon. Its several thousand members are strongly anti-West and anti-Israel. They are linked to the suicide truck bombing of the U.S. Marine barracks in Beirut in October 1983 and the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut in September 1984.

- The Palestine Islamic Jihad is committed to the destruction of Israel and the United States. The group threatened to retaliate against the United States for the murder of its leader, Fathi Shaqaqi, in Malta in October 1995. It has employed suicide bombers to attack Israel.

Meanwhile, President Bush has been working hard to cut off the terrorist bank accounts. Since Sept. 11, the Bush administration has frozen $6 million — a promising start. Roger Robinson, a former senior economic adviser in the Reagan administration who has been privy to White House briefings with the Bush team, strongly supports taking this economic war to the capital markets. He tells Insight that foreign companies conducting business with terrorist states simply would be cut out of the market.

Congress appears to be listening. Sens. Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.) and Larry Craig (R-Idaho) are pushing for a similar agenda. "This idea that for a short-term economic advantage they can continue to have strong economic relations with countries that help and abet and harbor terrorists must go out the window," Schumer said on the floor of the Senate a day after the Sept. 11 attack.

"Our global strategy should be re-examined to include adopting a more positive policy toward nearby countries opposed to such regimes and pressuring countries with which the United States has friendly relations but which may be supporting the harboring regimes to cease that support," Craig added, noting Iran and Libya continue to be supported by European countries that want their oil.

Cutting off a substantial amount of the funding still might not be enough when dealing with certain terrorist groups. The attacks against the World Trade Center and Pentagon did not need millions of dollars to accomplish. The Justice Department estimates the operations may have cost as little as $300,000. Similarly the 1993 World Trade Center attack may have cost as little as $18,000.

Even if the United States gets bin Laden or his assets, Bodansky says, the fear is that his legacy will haunt the West by having spread fanaticism. He already is a cult figure among radicalized Islamist youth, and students eagerly are joining his movement. One such student told Bodansky, "If we can't take revenge from the Americans during our lifetime, our own Osama will teach a lesson to them."

That is, unless, the United States teaches the lesson first.

BUDGETS COUNT

In this nitty gritty messed up world, with terrorists flying planes into buildings, Police shooting the Mentally Ill, and more becoming unemployed or homeless every day, I lay Awake at night wondering what new tragedy's tomorrow will bring.

To say I am a concerned citizen is an understatement; I am so much more than just concerned because you see I live in this society too. I do not wish to stay in my house and keep my head buried in the sand. I have a right and an obligation to stand up proud and say, "Hey, this is my opinion and I want it heard."

I have been speaking at a lot of groups and forums, including the Police training sessions held lately. The more I speak with people, the more I am convinced that We do not get to sit and gripe about the Budget anymore. I know that more situations happen each day that bring the crises into more light and more public attention. It is TIME for something to be DONE about the Budget. The Budget MUST pass, or we better have a darn good LOGICAL reason why it can't and a darn good alternative to follow it up. I'm very serious about what I am saying!!!! We have gone so far past need and so deep into CRISES that I am very worried that even with a Budget approval we'll do a lot of singing and dancing to get it to fly right

Please, lets make Portland a place to be considered livable again for each and EVERY Human being that lives here.

Highlights from Buckman:

- ◆ Buckman Host Families: Current Buckman families volunteer to act as host families for incoming students and their families to help familiarize them with Buckman and ease the transition. Host families contact new families throughout the year to answer questions and provide support.
- ◆ Additional academic support is provided to the 112 students (grades 2-5) we track who are not meeting benchmarks. These students are offered homework club (2x/wk), Schools Out Learning Days,

Break camps during winter and spring break, a Zoo educational overnight, as well as Jump Start Summer school in August. They also are offered scholarships to after school classes. 58% of non-benchmark students received SUN services. 56-66% of kids attending academic support activities are children of color.

Back to School Fair Over 1400 persons attended this events cosponsored with a local church & neighborhood association. The day included free immunizations, head lice checks, haircuts and school supplies along with food, entertainment, community resource booths, and fun kids activities.

- ◆ Health Fair and Housing & Health Services days attended by 238 adults and 173 kids. These events offered free services like blood pressure checks, blood sugar level screening, immunizations, lead level testing as well as information provided by numerous community health and housing organizations.
- ◆ Parent Educationals held quarterly and attended by 174 parents altogether.
- ◆ Free cultural/community building events held quarterly and attended by 674 persons altogether.
- ◆ International TV Turnoff Week: Buckman students participate in this event by engaging themselves in other community, school and family activities. Students were provided "101 Alternatives to Watching TV".
- ◆ Volunteer hours for spring term: Over 700 hours per quarter
- ◆ Average # of students in after school activities per week/Spring term: 196
- ◆ Covered Playground In a parent-led effort catalyzed by SUN, Buckman raised more than $100,000 towards construction of a covered playground.

"Buckman is a good example of a public school that really works for low-income child success. Our program integrates neighborhood and magnet children which allows students and parents from a range of socio-economic backgrounds to work together. SUN resources provide quality after school classes for our students in the areas of the arts, academic support and physical activities. These resources provide opportunities for our students who need support during CIM and days out of school. SUN funds go to coordinate activities for parents and students. They make Buckman accessible and available to our public."

County Budget Testimony – November 8, 2001

Good evening. My name is Steve Weiss. I'm vice-chair of the Multnomah Disability Services Advisory Council (the DSAC), and I also represent the DSAC on the Elders in Action Commission. In the Board of Commissioners' Budget Rebalancing document of October 15th, in the Goals for the Process section, the #2 item on Consumer Focus states that "The solution must consider impacts on the people served by County programs with special attention to the most vulnerable. Service reductions must be equitable and respect the distribution of people in need across the county."

In the November 6th Draft Rebalancing Strategy, I am very relieved to see that the Board has honored the commitment it made to respect the needs of the most vulnerable consumers of services, especially elders and people with disabilities. Of the approximately $560,000 in county general fund cuts submitted by Aging and Disability Services, the Board opted to cut only $25,000, and that would be taken from a program that would have the least impact on the welfare of ADS clients like myself. I want to express the gratitude of the DSAC for the sensitivity you've shown to the needs of elders and those of us with disabilities in the choices you've made in regard to the budget.

All of us on the DSAC and the Elders in Action Commission are aware that the problems with the budget will be with us for some time to come. But we are also aware, now more than ever, that this is a County Commission with a conscience, and that you will do whatever you can in the future to preserve services to vulnerable low income people in Multnomah County. Thank you for allowing me to address you.

A BEHAVIORAL HEALTH CARE COMPANY

Speaker #59

November 8, 2001

TO: Multnomah County Board of County Commissioners

FROM: Diane Feldt, North Portland Community & Family Center

I'm Diane Feldt, Director at the North Portland Community & Family Center, one of six geographically based Centers providing a safety net for vulnerable children, youth and families. I do appreciate the difficulty of what you must do. It is the most difficult test of leadership I have seen face the Board in the 15 years I have been at what I do. Programs initially put on cut lists that operate through the North Portland Community & Family Center include Youth Investment, the School Attendance Initiative and GIFT.

North has always worked with and advocated for services for vulnerable and high-risk populations. Youth Investment gave legitimacy to working with a population we had always served. School Attendance can identify those children and families at a much earlier age and why this arena ripe for development has not been followed-up remains a mystery to me. GIFT is a resource that began through the advocacy of the late Sharon McCormick, Elcena Boozer, Officer Dorothy Elmore, myself and others in the late 1980's. We recognized the need for specific programming focusing on primarily girls of color whose lives were and are deeply impacted by the youth gang culture. We recognized reaching this population would be difficult and it is. We recognized the need for a community based rather than a Juvenile Court based approach because many of the young women impacted are not on a Court caseload. At that time one particularly well known gang member had seven young mothers, babies in arms, show-up to visit while he was in detention. These were his children. Although that young man died in the streets years ago, he left a legacy of small children not unusual among young people engaged in the gang culture then and now. We recognized the generational aspects of gang cultures had demanded a focus on girls and teen mothers.

The North Portland GIFT Program includes prevention and intervention strategies focusing on self-sufficiency through academic achievement, training and employment. We are part of the HomeSafe Project, the only housing project for homeless teen mothers in the County. The HomeSafe collaboration includes $47,100 in funding representing intensive case management for teen mothers placed in eight housing slots. Our experience with very high-risk gang involved teen mothers has benefited the entire program.

Given the funding level and difficult population, numbers served by North Portland's GIFT have consistently surpassed expectations. GIFT is currently geographically and culturally specific and this is appropriate. GIFT needs discussion, planning and expansion to include other culturally specific and territorial gangs. I ask you to maintain what we are doing in North and to use our 10 years of experience in a serious planning process.

RE: Proposed Funding Elimination of North Portland GIFT Program

I was dismayed to discover that the North Portland GIFT Program was on the list of programs to be discontinued funding from Multnomah County. While I understand the budget crisis facing the county, the state, and individual families across Oregon, no program affecting the African American community should be cut.

In the event that you are not already familiar, let me remind you that the Oregon Progress Board has examined Oregon's racial and ethnic communities relative to the benchmarks from 1990-1998 and found that by every measure, Oregon's racial and ethnic communities have lost ground, from housing and homeownership to educational achievement and health care access. The Progress Board report exemplifies that Oregon's racial and ethnic communities did not share in the economic prosperity of the 1990's, and should not bear the further burden of budget cuts to support services. The County should make no cuts that further exacerbate the harsh conditions for these groups.

The GIFT Program provides services to a population that is often overlooked and underserved in Multnomah County – African American girls and their families. Utilizing a group model, this program has been able to impact young girls and their families well beyond their budgeted staff 1.5 FTE. These families have been adversely affected by increased gentrification in the North and Northeast area, which has caused increased isolation to this population. These girls and their families contribute to Multnomah County's tax base and should be able to readily access services they need.

I urge your support of the North Portland GIFT Program.

I also urge your re-examination of proposed cuts that directly and disproportionately harm our racial and ethnic communities by eliminating culturally specific and culturally competent community-based services.

Sisters in Action For Power

March 15, 2001

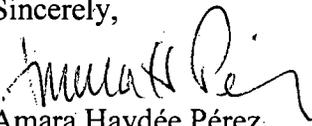

Dear County Commissioners,

I am writing on behalf of Sisters in Action for Power to express our disappointment with the de-funding of the GIFT program. As you may know Sisters in Action for Power is an intergenerational, multi-racial, community based organization that works with low income women and women and girls of color. We have been working with young women ages 11-19 for over five years.

GIFT has provided much needed services for girls living in Portland related to academic and social achievement and collaboration with other youth programs. Sisters in Action for Power has worked with Lanita Duke for several years in supporting the leadership and civic participation of low income girls and girls of color. This work is extremely important to the community given the effects of poverty, racism and gender violence on girls of color in Multnomah County. Programs for young women are central to empowering girls and addressing the variety of needs young women face. With so few existing girls' programming it is even more disheartening GIFT will be terminated.

We hope you will reconsider your decision to cut funding for GIFT. If you have any questions please feel free to contact us.

Sincerely,

Amara Haydée Pérez
Executive Director

PIVOT

November 8, 2001

TO: Multnomah County Board of Commissioners

FROM: Anna Street, Program Director, PIVOT Program

SUBJECT: ENDORSEMENT FOR CONTINUED FUNDING – NORTH PORTLAND GIFT PROGRAM

This letter is in strong of the North Portland GIFT Program. We work in strong partnership with the GIFT Program to prepare young women for academic and vocational success. This program is a stellar example of a holistic approach to providing social services - combining housing, education and vocational skills to a hard to reach, difficult to serve population.

With budget constraints a reality and more agencies pressuring representatives to do more with less, we hope that funding continues to those agencies serving broad and diverse youth populations with proven track records in making a difference. The North Portland GIFT Program is one. With the resources given, youth and the community receive much.

We urge you to please reconsider funding for this special program.

Thank you very much for your consideration.

November 4, 2001

TO: Multnomah County Board of Commosioners

FROM: Richard J Brown, co-chair, Black United Front

SUBJ: Funding of GIFT Program

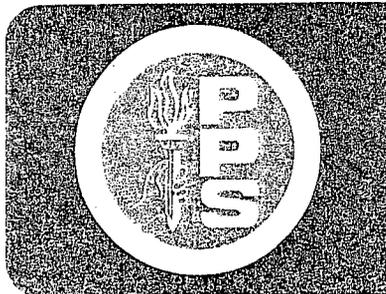

Over the years, we have appreciated the accomplishments of the GIFT Program with young girls of color in North and Northeast Portland.

The GIFT Program is one of the few programs that has successfully combined ACADEMIC performance and life skills, and is delivered to a historically underserved population. Of greater significance, succeeding where Portland Public Schools often fails, 100 % of these "at risk" girls graduated from high school or aquired a GED. Also of importance, only one of the girls became pregnant. Ten of the young ladies went on to college and a few have started their own businesses.

We understand the County's budget crisis; however, not only should funding continue for this program, but the programs success should be replicated through-out the County wherever young girls are "at risk". It would further reinforce the County's commitment to investing in its young people.

Thank you for considering this request.

TEEN PARENT SERVICES

October 31, 2001

TO: Multnomah County Board of Commissioners

FROM: Mary Karter Mary Karter
Portland Public Schools Teen Parent Services

This letter is to encourage you to continue funding for the North Portland GIFT Program.

We work with pregnant/parenting youth but also are concerned about pregnancy prevention. GIFT works with many at-risk girls, especially girls of color. GIFT is one of the few social service programs available that deals with academic enrichment. They work with a population that is very difficult to serve – and that many agencies can't, or won't, serve.

I encourage you to continue funding for this program in North Portland. They are able to keep high-risk girls from entering the social service system in ways such as teen pregnancy. Please make their continuation a high priority in your budget.

Thanks so much for your consideration of this request.

To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Funding for Gang Influenced Female Team

I was very concerned to hear that funding for the Gang Influenced Female Team (G.I.F.T.) may be discontinued as of December 31, 2001. The G.I.F.T. Program provides a much-needed service for teenage females at risk of gangs, violence and teen pregnancy. Over the past ten years, G.I.F.T. has worked in partnership with the Northeast Coalition of Neighborhoods (NECN) to provide prevention and intervention services to females in North and Northeast Portland. GIFT has also collaborated with our Youth Gangs Program to provide positive support for our weekly female group meetings. Twenty young women consistently attend the weekly group and just recently celebrated their one year anniversary. Group topics have included: education, employment, health care, personal grooming, relationships, date rape, and parenting skills, just to name a few.

In light of the recent crisis regarding female-to-female gang violence and the high rate of teen pregnancy among our young women, I urge you to reconsider discontinuation of G.I.F.T. and restore funding to the current level.

Please feel free to contact me at 503.823.4575.

Portland, OR 97227-1155

Five years ago we had inmates being released early due to a lack of adequate space for beds.

The public was concerned and voted to provide the jurisdiction to correct the problem.

The primary mission of a county is to provide for the safety of the county population and to promote their general welfare.

Jail programs aimed at helping inmates turn their lives around promotes the general welfare.

The mental health down is a model program for an ever-increasing population.

Making decisions on short term trends leads to long term problems

Double bunking and increased officer/inmate supervision ratios instituted by Sheriff Noelle is an efficient use of staff and cost effective.

A reduction of jail beds does not make the community safer.

Cuts in the Sheriff's budget will close more jail beds in the face of long term projections.

People do not want jails in their neighborhoods because of a fear of the inmates. Would they prefer to have the inmates loose in their neighborhoods?

County Commissioners Statement

My name is Kathy Belge and I am Program Manager at Vanguard Youth services. I am here to advocate for services for sexual minority youth and the Youth Investment System.

As a program manager, what I know is that youth NEED the services that are provided through the Youth Investment System, especially those very scant services for sexual minority youth.

I appreciate that at this point we are not on the cutting block.. I am encouraging you to keep it this way. Providing support groups and case management SAVES you money.

But providing support to youth

~~before they become homeless~~

Please keep your commitment to Sexual Minority Youth.
